Science Dean New Auxiliary Provincial

Brother Alfred Will supervise Religious Training

Brother Alfred, professor of physics and head of the School of Science at Saint Mary's College, has been appointed auxiliary provincial of the Christian Brothers. His principal duties will be to supervise the higher education and religious training of members of the order.

This will in no way interfere with his classes here. He will continue to teach his present courses.

Brother Alfred came to Saint Mary's in 1930. Three years ago he received his doctors degree from the University of California.

The district that he will supervise is under Brother Jasper, who is provincial for the region, known as the San Francisco area. One college and five secondary schools are included in the territory that Brother Alfred will cover. Besides Saint Mary's College, it comprises Christian Brothers high school in Sacramento, Cathedral high in Los Angeles, Saint Mary's College high school in Berkeley, and the two high schools of the order in San Francisco.

Previous to Brother Alfred's appointment, there had been no assistant to the provincial, although it is a position that has been filled several times in the past.

Brother Alfred's versatality is well known on the campus, especially in regard to music. He composed the famous "Gael Fight Song", for the football games, and is leader of the Glee Club, and is moderator of the Y.M.I.

3000 Spectators At Rally, Not 500

Accuracy is the Collegian's motto But the campus publication erred by a considerable degree last week when it announced the California rally attendance at 500.

Faculty historian Brother Vantasian conservatively estimated a crowd of 3000 persons at the rally the largest crowd ever to pack the campus gymnasium.

The error is charged to the fact that the story had to be "written in advance in the past tense" as the rally was held the same night that the Collegian went to press.

Catholic Intercollegiate Association Will Present Open Forum Over Radio

The six Catholic colleges of the Bay area will unite this term to present a radio open-forum on questions of collegiate interests, when present plans of the Intercollegiate association proceed beyond the nebulous stage, Walter Calcagno, Saint Mary's student body president revealed yesterday.

SECRETARY—Miss Adelaide Burch, student body president of College of Holy Names, Oakland, who was elected secretary of the Catholic Intercollegiate Association at a meeting held on the Saint Mary's campus Monday.

—Courtesy Merritt Mirror

Calcagno's announcement came as the result of a meeting on the campus Monday during which representatives from Saint Mary's, Santa Clara, San Francisco, College of the Holy Names, San Francisco College for Women, and Dominican College discussed joint sponsorship of numerous collegiate activities. A literary magazine, and the annual autumn formal dance were also touched briefly at the meeting.

OFFICERS ELECTED

High point of the meeting was the election of officers for the Intercollegiate association. William Grul, Santa Clara, was named chairman; Adelaide Burch, Holy Names student body president, was elected secretary, while Anthony Tarantino, University of San Francisco head, was named treasurer.

The proposed round-table forum will consist of a half-hour discussion by six students, one from each college. The six will discuss a topic of current interest, the aspects of which will influence collegiate activities, Calcagno stated.

RADIO COMMITTEE

In order to speedily secure an adequate radio station for the forum, a committee was named to contact major stations of the Bay area regarding possible time for the program. The committee includes Calcagno, Robert Rossi, San Francisco; Irene Lawrence, San Francisco College for Women; June Stricker, Dominican, Patrick McGarry, Santa Clara student body leader, and Juanita Drier of Holy Names.

The proposal for a literary magazine was temporarily tabled pending more progress on the radio forum. Concerning the Intercollegiate formal dance to be held next semester, a resolution was passed providing for the appointment to the association of one junior member from each school, thus insuring perpetuation of the organization and its activities.

REPRESENTATIVES

Present at the meeting were the following: John Beck, William Egan, and Calcagno, Saint Mary's; the Misses Burch and Drier, Holy Names; McGarry and Grul, Santa Clara; Tarantino and Robert Rossi, U.S.F.; Antoinette Waters and Miss Lawrence, Lone Mountain; Genevieve Ward and Miss Stricker, Dominican.

The next meeting of the Intercollegiate association will be held on the Santa Clara campus. Meetings are held the first week of each month.

Senior Debaters To Meet Juniors

Freshman Finals Will Be Held On October 17

The semi-finals of the present inter-class debate tournament will be held next Thursday, October 17. Senior debaters, William Egan and Walter Calcagno, will meet the junior team composed of Horway Witteman and Garrett Fox in Room D201.

The sophomore team composed of Robert Fouts and James Boock, who recently defeated Edward Gunz and William Feneran, will meet Kenneth Vinnicombe and Milo Mackin, to decide the sophomore team to be represented in the finals.

Francis Starrs and Donald Wood defeated Warren Ring and Frank Ryan, deciding the Freshman class representative.

Brother Has Religion Book Published

A second edition of Brother Angelus Raphael's "Vocation Day Programs," a series of outlines for the use of teachers of Religion in Catholic schools, has recently come from the press.

The booklet consists of a set of ten completely monthly (September through June) programs for the study of the various states of life. There are lesson plans, conference suggestions, source lists, etc., for the teacher or counselor.

The first edition of this work appeared a year ago and has found wide circulation in Catholic educational institutions in the United States, Canada, and Australia. The programs has the official approval of the Most Reverend Francis J. Spellman, D.D., Archbishop of New York. The president of St. Joseph's Seminary, New York, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Arthur J. Scanlon, D.D., writes: "The work is well done and I wish it every success."

First Autumn 'Brickpile' Goes To Press

Literary Magazine Will Appear on Campus Next Week

"Quantity of quality in literary art", in the words of Thomas Heidenreich, editor-in-chief, "make up the first fall issue of the Saint Mary's College student literary publication, the Brickpile. The best in campus writers have aided, according to Heidenreich, in formulating a magazine that for size and literary excellence compares with those of other colleges.

In the search for a varied content, selection of material to be used has followed a prearranged plan calling for satire, humor, fiction, and poetry. In an endeavor to assure a complete sell-out, the edition has been limited by the staff to 150 copies priced at ten cents.

"This will not only preclude all danger of financial failure," Heidenreich stated, "but will make the copies more valuable after the old law of supply and demand."

FRAT SATIRE

Highlights of the Brickpile are "Beaglesnap Carries On" by William Feneran, who satires the fraternity and sorority systems as they exist on most modern campuses, comparing them to the society-free Saint Mary's campus; "I Beg to Differ", an essay by Lloyd Gallardo, senior pre-legal student, on the recent religious controversy initiated by Albert E. Einstein, noted physicist, and author of the theory of relativity. The essay contains an answer to the objections to a personal God raised by professor Einstein, as well as a discussion of philosophy in general.

"Faded Caballero", fiction based on a theme familiar to students at Saint Mary's was written by Lionel Holmes; and "Tale of a Tail", was contributed by Gerard Fitzpatrick who writes a revealing pseudo-history on the topic of Kerry Blue tails.

MAN OF THE MONTH

"Man of the Month" by George Farnham, junior student, narrates the life story of Saint Mary's new director of sports publicity, Dinty Doyle. Poetry by campus authors, and editorials by staff members complete the list of selections.

The final draft for the initial printing was selected only after a number of works had been read and rejected.

"This will be the practice in the future", Heidenreich announced, "for our object is not merely to present a cross-section of campus literature but to make certain that we have secured the best in that cross-section."

STAFF NAME

The work of publication is shared by Heidenreich with Milton Figeroid, sophomore, as managing editor, and Robert Johnson, senior, as business manager. Feature writers are requested to submit their efforts to any of the staff, immediately, for incorporation in the next issue.

Now sponsored by the Fourth Estate, campus press club, the "Brickpile" was originated by Joseph Alioto '37. The original issue appeared in 1936 after which the magazine has led an existence filled with periods of financial and executive failure. Until a few years ago the idea was abandaned as entailing too much expense.

Until 1939 the project lay dor-

Student Pilots To Get First Flight Lessons

Twenty Enrolled In C.A.A. Class; Must Be Reduced To Ten

Tonight the twenty Saint Mary's student enrolled in the civilian pilot training program will hear Chester R. Dickson of the Bay City Fliers inaugurate his flight instruction lessons. Last Monday Professor Weinberg, chairman of the engineering department, conducted the first class session of the current fall training program with a discussion of navigation.

Wednesday evening Brother Alfred, head of the physics department and newly appointed assistant provincial for the Christian Brothers, conducted a class in meteorology.

PART OF 45000

The ten Saint Mary's men eventually selected to complete the course will form a part of the 45,000 persons taking similar training throughout the United States.

That alumni and former Saint Mary's students were eligible to take the CAA program was revealed today when Comptroller W. J. Milliken co-ordinator of the training program, announced that "as long as they comply with all other requirements, we shall be glad to receive them." Students that have not graduated must have completed at least two years of accredited college work.

MORE SENIORS

At present, seniors lead the enrollees, numbering thirteen. Juniors are next with five applicants, followed by two sophomores. Freshmen are automatically barred from the course.

TWO SOPHOMORES

The two sophomore applicants are Francis Bender and Desmond Kiernan.

All those who desire to take the course must sign a pledge in which they promise "to offer their services for national defense if necessary." That statement was amplified by Harry Bell, Oakland C.A.A. head, who conferred with Milliken last Wednesday. "That means," he explained, "that the student in signing up for civilian pilot training assumes the obligation of accepting military training if it is offered to him." This is in case of a national emergency.

PILOT COURSE

A course is offered those who complete the primary civilian pilot training in order that their licenses may not lapse. The government requires 15 hours of flying a year. The pilot syllabus flying offers students an opportunity of renewing their licenses without undergoing the complete examination.

The Department of Commerce requires a physical examination every 14 months, however.

Gael 'Alma Mater' Song To Be Aired

Saint Mary's College will be saluted tonight on the "Johnny Presents" radio program heard locally over station KSFO at 8:30 o'clock. The Saint Mary's "Alma Mater" song will be played on the program.

SCRAPPY—Joseph McGrath, senior history major who was elected captain for Sunday's game with the University of San Francisco at Kezar stadium. McGrath, 175-pound guard, is noted for his ability to bowl over 200-pound opposing linesmen.

Ex Council Gets Excited

Bedlam Reigns As Yell Leader Wants L. A. Funds

Bedlam broke loose at the Executive Council meeting last Wednesday when a faction fight between Les Dole and debating participants followed the publishing of the Council's annual budget.

Amused students present at the meeting saw several council men led by Horway Witteman throw the business procedure of the body into utter confusion and consternation when Head Yell Leader Dole asked for an appropriation of $41 to send three cheer leaders to the Loyola game in Los Angeles and Witteman sprang to his feet shouting, "Why give three yell leaders $41 to represent the school for one week-end in Los Angeles when the entire debating team gets only twice that much to represent us over the entire countryside for a whole year?"

LIMITED FUND

Thus arguing that in view of a limited student body fund the appropriation requested by Dole was unfair to other campus activities, especially debating, Dole's opponents finally won the vote of the Council and resolved to allot $15 for the expenses of one yell leader at the Loyola game.

Meanwhile the budget which the Council has awaited since the beginning of the semester was left undiscussed and unapproved. After the yell leader question was settled another battle was immediately started when members of the Rally Committee present disapproved of the sum listed for them in the proposed budget.

WANT TOO MUCH

The Rally club has already presented bills for payment by the Council that total more than the allowance that the Council has set aside for that organization, a situation that is expected to cause more heated argument when it is scheduled to be arbitrated at a future meeting.

On adjourning the Council set their next gathering for Monday and resolved to devote the entire meeting to approving a satisfactory budget. The budget will be released in next week's Collegian.

Institute to Discuss World's War Troubles

"The United States and War" is the topic to be treated by the YMI discussion group this semester.

The topic will be developed to include such sub-topics as conscription, imperialism, unjust and just war, war propaganda, and Monroe Doctrine and this country's relationship to the present European war. The conflict of American interests with Japan in the east, and with Germany in South America will also be considered.

First meeting of the group will be held Monday, October 14, from 8 to 9 p.m. in the YMI clubroom.

Football Players Confined to Infirmary

Football players dominated the list of the infirmary patients for the past week. Those confined included John Odisio, Ted Brandon, Grant McMeen, Edward Schullman, Steve Stergar, James Powers, Edward Cerf, Frank Mooney and Robert Litchfield.

USF-Gael Encounter Sunday Looms as Most Exciting Game of Local Grid Season

"Red" Strader and "Duke" Malley Out to Shoot Works in Struggle for Impressive Victory

By MARIO SANGUINETTI

With a sly hint that the Gaels would bounce back with such a recoil that USF won't know what hit them, Coach "Red" Strader made final preparations for this Sunday's titanic tussle against the Malley aggregation.

Strader also added, "The experience gained in the Cal game was just what our sophomores needed." He further believes that the mistakes and weak spots have been ironed out and that Don Frisco will have a hot time on his hands when he comes across the rejuvenated Gael outfit.

Most of the local gentry seem to have adverse opinions. USF carefully arranged their schedule so as to draw a bye for the week preceding the Saint Mary's game. This gives the Dons the advantage of having a full extra week's practice to devote to Saint Mary's plays, and the privilege of the entire team scouting the Gaels in the Cal game. The Gaels came out of Saturday's setto very much battered and bruised, while the Dons had a quiet weekend.

EXPERIENCE

Another factor which the public believes is in the Hill-toppers' favor

News Editor Resigns Post On Collegian

Uncle Sam's civilian pilot training program can be blamed for the brief flurry of excitement around the Collegian office early this week, for the C.A.A. lured John Beck, junior, away from his editorial desk in favor of nine hours a week flying instruction.

Forced to resign his position as news editor of the Collegian because of the extra time required for the pilot course. Beck will be tentatively replaced by a three-man news board, comprised of Garrett Fox, junior, assistant news editor, and Sophomores John Klein and Milton Figeroid.

News assignments will be allotted to the reporters by these three. They will divide the divers duties of the job among them.

Fox matriculated to Saint Mary's from Christian Brothers high school, Sacramento. Klein edited the Sacred Heart high school paper, while Figerold was editor of the Castlemont high school, Oakland, Crier.

Beck was appointed to the news editorship last March. He will continue on the staff as an editorial writer.

Thespians Speed Up Rehearsals

Dramatic Group Rehearses Two One-Act Plays

Speeding up production plans so as to "abruptly end Saint Mary's period of dramatic inactivity," Edward Gunz, sophomore head of the campus actors, announced yesterday that daily rehearsals will replace weekly practices of the two plays now under way.

Roles in the two short plays, "At Porto Banos" and "The Victim" have been assigned, and the students are now rehearsing under the direction of Gunz and Professor Louis F. LeFevre, faculty moderator.

TO END INACTIVITY

Gunz indicated that the plays will be presented to a campus audience before the end of the month, marking the first time in almost three years that any dramatic production was presented by Saint Mary's students.

Roger Heidenreich, senior, who is assisting Gunz in the managerial work of the local actors, announced that tentative arrangements have been made with the dramatic coach at College of the Holy Names to produce a play some time during the year in conjunction with the students there. Any immediate plans along this line had to be tabled as the Oakland women's college is now preparing a play to be given November 19.

PLAY OVER KROW

Also being considered by the Moraga dramatists is the presentation of a play over the KROW program "Saint Mary's Speaks". Gunz is looking into the possibility of adding the dramatic stint into the regular program, thus making the complete time one half hour instead of the 15 minutes which is the present time allotted. The plays would be presented monthly.

ASSMC President Tells Of Plans For Semester

Student Body President Walter Calcagno has ideas, it was indicated this week, as the ASSMC head released his program of events and activities for the remainder of the semester. The new calendar provides students with an extensive and varied program of social, educational, and recreational extra-curricular activities.

Calcagno revealed that Saint Mary's will sponsor two supper dances on the campus this semester with Bay area women's colleges as guests. Although exact dates are still indefinite, and no invitations have been mailed as yet, the student leader promised that the first of these two dances will be held late this month. A chairman for the affair will be appointed soon and the sign-up will immediately follow.

LIMITED NUMBER

"It must be remembered," Calcagno stated, "that only a limited number of students will be allowed to attend, so watch for further announcements, as the first to sign up will be selected."

Also being planned is a Saint Mary's-Santa Clara football rally and dance. Custom has dictated that the senior class handle this rally annually, and assume all responsibility; however, this year may present a different set-up. Calcagno indicated that the Associated Students may take over the pregame festivities and hold the rally and dance in Oakland with the assistance of Alumni units and the Saint Mary's club.

OAKLAND RALLY

Oakland's Civic auditorium is the site being considered. The rally would feature many prominent athletic figures from the California colleges and newspapers and also several professional entertainers. A noted dance orchestra would play for the dance following the rally, and the general public would be invited to both events.

"This is just a possibility," Calcagno remarked, "as no definite arrangements or plans have been made yet."

A "send-off" rally is likewise scheduled for this month, preceding the football team's departure for their three out-of-town games, and would serve as a demonstration of the student body spirit in wishing the team "good-luck" in the Loyola, Fordham, and Portland games, Calcagno said.

PRE-TOUR RALLY

"This is something new in rallies, and although the affair would be held on the campus, it would create a pre-game spirit and introduce the highlights of the trip to the students."

Calcagno also made known that the monthly student-body meetings would be continued. The meetings will be held in D201 where any problems or questions concerning the college will be debated.

With the rebirth of dramatics on the Moraga campus, Calcagno observed that there is a possibility of several campus productions being brought before the audience. Since Calcagno's program calls for the continuance of the radio program, "Saint Mary's Speaks," he indicated that the dramatics group may cooperate with the radio club in presenting skits over the air.

RADIO PROGRAM

Other activities of the semester include an inter-collegiate radio program, sponsored by the Intercollegiate association, and participation in the U.S.F.-Saint Mary's rally to be held on the San Francisco campus tomorrow night. Calcagno and Lester Dole, head yell-leader, will represent Saint Mary's and appear as guest speakers. All Saint Mary's students are invited to attend the rally and dance.

"I believe that the above activities are sufficient for the first six-months," Calcagno stated. "There are enough things to keep the average student active. All that is needed now is for students to get behind these functions and give the various chairmen and committees their full support so that we can make each separate event a grand success. We can only achieve success by cooperation," he added.

How to Earn Bread and Butter? Law, Teaching Favored by Most Students

Teaching will call approximately 20 per cent of the Saint Mary's students after graduation, 15 per cent will attempt to hurdle the bar examination, 45 per cent will scatter their talents in a variety of positions in the business and professional world, while the remaining 20 per cent haven't made up their minds what they are going to do.

These are the statistics culled from an examination of ballots returned by two-thirds of the student body in answer to a Collegian-conducted poll which posed a question on post-graduate activities of students.

TEACHERS

If present aims are adhered to, 35 of the 225 men voting will reverse the procedure of their undergraduate days to teach in the grade, secondary and higher schools, the poll revealed. Pedagogy was the leading choice of both seniors and sophomores.

The 26 future lawyers will come from each of the four classes, but predominatly from the class of 1944.

Freshmen chose the greatest variety of jobs. To name a few: the priesthood, butcher, farming, dentistry, army, foreign trade, journalism, and accounting, besides teaching and law. One student was undecided about being a mortician or entering professional baseball. Two others planned to enter the embalming business.

SOPHOMORE JOBS

Sophomores will attempt to carve niches for themselves in such fields as engineering, journalism, the army, geology, baseball, law and teaching.

Despite the fact that but three juniors are actively engaged on the Collegian reporterial staff, a number of third year men indicated their intention of trying their luck in journalism. Other professions indicated in this class were medicine, accounting, printing, music, law and teaching, with one man choosing professional football.

Senior choices were almost as varied as those of the first year students, with men pointing toward engineering, advertising, journalism, insurance, foreign trade, aeronautics, real estate, law and teaching.

UNDECIDED

Seniors, with less than a year before ending their undergraduate careers, have six in their ranks who as yet don't know how they'll earn their bread and butter. Juniors and sophomores professed no doubt as to their work, while freshmen were the most uncertain, with 17 not bothering to do much worrying about the problem yet.

Senior Debaters To Meet Juniors In Semi Finals

will meet the freshmen winners in the finals on Thursday afternoon, October 17.

The finals will be held between the upper and lower division on Tuesday, October 21, in the student lounge. Brother Cyprian, debating moderator, announced that three former students prominent in the law profession are being contacted to judge the debate between the upper class winner and the lower class representative.

Freshman debate manager Boock, and varsity debate leader Egan expressed satisfaction over the results of the present tournament. Egan stated: "The audience of these debates have been very satisfactory. If the students give their same cooperation to the intercollegiate debates, this season will be extremely successful."

Five freshman teams, three sophomore representatives and two junior and two senior teams competed in the recent tournament.

Large Crowd Attends Post Game Dance

Defeat on the gridiron last Saturday afternoon failed to dim the spirit at the Saint Mary's-California post-game dance held in the roof garden of the Hotel Whitcomb in San Francisco that same night.

A crowd of students. alumni and supporters of Saint Mary's, exceeding the number expected by senior class sponsors, danced from 9 to 1 o'clock to the music of Jack Kelly and his orchestra.

Senior football players were admitted as guests.

WILLIAM EGAN

Bill Egan is an Irishman with a lot of ideas, a silent though effective influence in the student body, and a gift of gab that has stood him in the graces of the varsity debating squad for the past three years.

His resources seem unlimited; he has an answer for everything. A member of last year's forensic squad that got marooned in the wooly wilds of the Northwest (along with the honorable Messrs. Franey and Sill), he intimated to the writer that graduation in May wouldn't find him stuck for a job. If he fails to get an "in" with one of the local steamship companies (which would shatter his dreams of a Goldsmithian "Grand Tour", he can always resort to the draft, providing the army officials don't beat him to the punch.

And Egan is not all nonsense either. President of the Senior Class (which this year allows a breathing spell with no Gael debt to be amortized,) he was nosed out in a nip and tuck race for the ASSMC against Walter Calcagno, manager of the varsity debate squad for the past two years. Bill last March did the gavel-rapping at the annual Catholic high school debate congress, sponsored and inaugurated by the Alpha Phi Gamma Upsilon, campus honorary society, of which he is also a member.

Aside from cracking a goodly number of books in economics, English, religion and foreign trade, he holds membership in the Sanctuary society, the Young Men's Institute, the International Relations club, the Economic Honor society, the St. Vincent de Paul group, and, lastly, the Catholic Intercollegiate association, the last of which engages his present activity to promote the forthcoming Intercollegiate formal, inaugurated last year by Saint Mary's College under the presidency of Thomas Feeney, a good friend of senior William Egan.

Moraga Debaters Argue With Cal Men

Arguing the affirmative of the question of giving military and economic aid short of military manpower to Great Britain, senior debaters, Lloyd Gallardo and Roger Heidenreich met a University of California varsity team in the lounge last night.

Representing the Berkeley institution were Miss Betsy Cooper and Louis Marengo, who upheld the negative side of the issue.

William Egan, varsity debate manager, has also sent requests for debates to the University of San Francisco, San Francisco State College, University of Stanford, and University of Santa Clara.

An extensive program is being planned by Egan and Brother Cyprian, debating moderator, for the seven varsity debate teams.

Gael Picture Proofs To Be Distributed

Individual picture proofs for the 1941 Gael will be privately distributed early next week in De La Salle Lounge, according to Horway Witteman, editor-in-chief of the year-book.

Contrary to custom in the past, Witteman pointed out, the proofs will not be handed out freely, to be taken home. "In an effort to lose as few proofs as possible, and as a means of speeding up progress on the Gael, we have decided to allow the students to make prompt, final decisions as to the picture they wish in the book."

Bulletins will be posted regarding the date on which the pictures will be subject to student inspection, Witteman added, "and we ask everyone to cooperate with us in the matter."

President Represents College in Sacramento

Catholic dignitaries and laymen from all parts of northern and central California were present last week in a solemn pontifical High Mass, celebrated at the Cathedral of The Blessed Sacrament at Sacramento, California, in honor of the 100th anniversary of the appointment of the first bishop of California.

Brother Albert, president of the College, represented Saint Mary's at the high pontifical Mass.

Most Rev. Robert Armstrong, bishop of Sacramento, was celebrant of the Mass which was attended by 100 priests and the following bishops: Most Rev. John J. Mitty of San Francisco, Most Rev. Philip Schere of Monterey-Fresno, Most Rev. Thomas A. Gormon of Reno, and Most Rev. John Connolly, auxiliary bishop of San Francisco.

Reverend Father Thomas O'Kane of San Francisco was the preacher of the Mass which was sung by more than 300 boys from the Christian Brothers School of Sacramento.

Copper and nitrate mining in Chile has been greatly curtailed because of the European war.

Politicians Organize Democrats

"We Rose With Roosevelt, Why Wilt With Willkie?" is the cry being heard on the campus since the organizations of the "Young Democrats", newest club formed at Saint Mary's, and already boasting an enrollment of 200 with more joining every minute. President Steven Stergar and Vice-President Clem Organ yesterday issued a call for all democrats to report to the campus Democratic Headquarters at Room 215 Center Dormitory and pledge their support to the organization.

According to Stergar, plans are now under way for a gigantic rally to be held on the campus sometime before the November Presidential election, and several prominent political leaders have been contacted in the bay area and been asked to speak at the affair. So far, those contacted have promised to cooperate to their fullest extent.

Sterger claims that the Democrat club is moving fast and rapidly winning over to its side supporters of the Republican party.

A direct challenge has been hurled by the Young Democrats to Republican supporters for an open forum debate to be held in the lounge before the coming election.

Freshmen Will Elect Class Officers

Candidates for offices should have at least a C average, should be in a position to devote time to the office, and should have manifested some qualities of leadership since his enrollment, according to Brother Paul, Freshman class moderator, who will conduct the meeting.

GAEL GOSSIP

—By—

GEORGE FARNHAM
SPORTS EDITOR

Well! WELL!

That WAS a surprise!

And we thought rigor mortis had already set in.

It just goes to show you that a football team isn't dead until its whole squad is crippled with paralysis or broken legs.

California was so impressive in its win over the Gaels last week that over in Berkeley they are beginning to have rosey dreams of Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Pasadena, Pasadena, wherefor art thou, Pasadena.

And they want to meet Michigan again! And Tommy Harmon! You'd think they'd learn that fire burns greedy hands reaching for burnt chestnuts.

They've doubtless forgotten about two or three other teams in the Coast Conference. Teams which have a better right to the conference title and teams which they must play.

There are a group of football players down the peninsula way at a place called Leland Stanford Jr. University who seem to be going fairly well as football teams go.

And this Saturday the Washington State Cougars, fresh from administering a sound thrashing to Montana and the week before deadlocking the mighty Trojan war horse, have a date with the Bear. And you can bet it will be no lovers' meeting. The Cougars also have designs on that Pasadena trip.

Even discounting the fact that the Californians are pipe dreaming, it would be extremely bad policy for the Conference to choose the Bears as the most exemplary of western football teams.

The conference champ is supposed to represent the west in the Rose Bowl, and even if the Bears look like a million dollars at the end of season, that 41 to zero licking at the hands of Harmon and company is too much of a black eye on western football.

However, we still like Stanford in the Rose Bowl, so we don't think conference chiefs will have much trouble picking this region's representative.

About Saturday's Game

It is beginning to look like Allison and Malley have been reading the same battle plans.

It will be remembered that two weeks ago USF suffered a fate similar to that of the Bears. Stanford seemed to be holding back in pouring out its 27 to 0 dirge over the prostrate form of Don Francisco.

In itself that game means nothing. But the Bears came back and it is beginning to smell like all is not rotten on Hilltop hacienda, as is now being prominently noised abroad from the USF transmitter.

Gaels, be ye not deceived by tinklings and soundings of brass. There is naught to be gained by false imaginings.

George Malley is a wily bird. He knocked off our scalp very roughly last season and now he is back for the fuzz that has grown in.

He amiably shakes our right hand but methinks we perceive a stilleto in the arm lurking behind his gaily bedecked back.

Predictions Unlimited

Though the Gaels lost last week, our prediction department upped its average from .500 to .600 (5 picks correct for 7 predictions).

However, we expect something similar to the 1929 stock market crash this week. Games are becoming tougher to pick and it looks like more than one college with fond "untarnished" season hopes will sink to disparaging depths by Monday.

We like, with fingers crossed, the Gaels to conquer the Dons by 19 to 7. Oregon State should have little trouble in beating Portland U. Loyola over Whittier, Washington State over California, Stanford over Santa Clara, but close; USC will avenge its two ignoble ties on the Illini from Illinois. UCLA over Texas A & M, Washington over Oregon, Gonzaga to beat Idaho.

There they are. You won't find us until Monday, and we will do our best to keep out of sight then.

C'Est La Guerre?

Gael Gossip Dept.
St. Mary's College
George Farnham,
Sir:

According to your "Gael Gossip" I notice the GAELS have adopted the British colors for the coming season. Would suggest that you also change the name of the team to the "Limies."

Sorry but I presume there is nothing for an Irishman to do, who helped to form the St. Mary's Club, but to transfer his affection to some American minded team, say USF, the wearers of the Green and Gold.

Very truly,
T. J. MELLOTT.

Veddy, veddy peculyah, old chappie. All along we thought we were doffing our hats to "Old Glory" and now we find we are espousing the cause of the accursed British.

The red, white and blue are "Limie" colors! Looks like that proposed English coalition of the U. S. and Great Britain has at last come about.

Blood Of Four Players Acceptable For Dykes

Four varsity basketball players, out of the fourteen who offered their blood to Harlan Dykes, stricken coach, for transfusions, were accepted by U. C. hospital physicians as having the right type.

Dykes, strengthened by the blood of his players, underwent an operation last Saturday at the U. C. hospital. His condition at present is not known.

Ill over a period of time, he was forced to resign his position as head coach of basketball at Saint Mary's to enter the hospital for the operation.

Cal Impresses In 9-6 Gael Routing

A revived, fighting-mad Golden Bear eleven displayed itself in sharp fashion before a crowd of 50,000 fans last Saturday in Memorial Stadium by claiming a 9 to 6 victory over their time-honored rivals, the Galloping Gaels of Saint Marys.

Having been tagged as two to one underdogs in the pre-game betting, the Bears, after having had their goal line penetrated early in the first quarter, came back to spread havoc throughout the Gael forces, showing tremendous power in their line thrusts.

However, the final score does not tell how the battered, inexperienced Gaels four times in the final quarter alone stopped California inside their own 20-yard line.

Gaelets Beat USF 12-6 in Lopsided Tilt

The Gaelets brought an end to a five year famine, as far as winning from the Muchachos were concerned, by trouncing the Baby Dons 12 to 6 Sunday before a crowd of 2500.

After fiddling away three-quarters of the first half, the Gaelets came to life with a rush. With the ball on the Frosh 27 yard line, Ahlstrom cracked over right tackle, shook off three would-be tacklers, reversed his field and rambled to the Don 26, where he was run out of bounds by Sheridan of the Muchachos. On the next play, Buzz Trebotich went over the same tackle and crossed the goal line, giving two Dons a free ride with him. The conversion went to the right of the goal posts. The half ended without further damage and it left the score Frosh 6, U. S. F. 0.

The second half again saw the Gaelets on the move. Louie Gottschalk wiggled his way through the Don line and out into the open for 26 big yards and a first down on the Baby Don 47. Roy Giusti proved the undoing of U.S.F. by running the ends three times and gaining 17, 14, and 10 yards respectively for a first down on the six yard line. After three attempts to break the tightened Don line, Ahlstrom cracked over the center for six big points for the Gaelets. Again the conversion failed and the Gaelets led 12 to 0.

A last minute flurry of passes netted the Dons their only score of the day. Sheridan tossed a 12 yard pass to Mattson in the end zone. The conversion was blocked. This ended the scoring for the day and the final score saw the Gaelets on top, 12 to 6. The game was marred by many injuries to the battered Dons. Outstanding for the Gaels was the running of Trebotich, Ahlstrom and Gottschalk and the kicking of Cerf and Giusti, U.S.F. had practically a one-man team in the person of Sheridan who did the kicking, passing and running for the U.S.F. team.

Phoenix Win First League Game 8 to 7

Darryl Reynolds, Saint Mary's converted outfielder, doubled in the last half of the thirteenth inning scoring Jackie Tobin from third base to climax a game packed with thrills, thus enabling the Saint Mary's Phoenix nine to nose out the strong Ben's Golden Glo semi-pro team 8-7 in the opening Alameda Winter league game last Sunday.

Charley Mori and Wes Bailey shared the pitching duties. Bailey who relieved Mori in the seventh inning was the winning pitcher.

Hilltop Gridders in Victory Mood: Foghorn Sports Ed

By NED BURNS, Sports Editor, USF Foghorn

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Two teams that have already been stung by the "over-confidence" bug will square off Sunday in San Francisco's Kezar stadium attempting to re-establish themselves with the fans who made them 2 to 1 favorites over Stanford and California, respectively.

Both USF and the Gaels of Moraga know how it feels to be praised to the sky and then fizzle out when the test was put to fire. Neither of the two wish to be favored again Sunday, having already been convinced that the short end is the best end.

What happened to the Dons against Stanford and where the Gaels were against California is ancient history but what's most important now is the annual encounter between the Gaels and Dons, a game in which anything can happen and usually does.

USF expects to be a better ball club Sunday, and following last year's 7 to 0 victory would like nothing better than to make it two in a row over a team which they have been able to whip only once in fourteen years.

A partially new lineup will take the field Sunday for the Dons than the squad which opened against Stanford. Replacing the temporarily retired Cliff Fisk at fullback will be Lewis Finch, a 180-pound dynamiter from Atascadero, Calif. Lew played behind Cliff all last year and really came into his own late in the season against Montana. Weighing only 180 pounds, he is described by George Malley as the hardest hitting back on the team for his weight.

Besides this fact Lew is an excellent blocker and will be a spark for the Dons Sunday.

Over the two-week layoff period following the Stanford encounter, "Daffy" Pete Franceschi has spelled Marvin Mosconi at left halfback. This will be some relief to the Stradermen inasmuch as it was Mosconi who romped over the Gael goal line for the only touchdown of last year's game.

But far be it from Malley to let Saint Mary's have their cake and eat it too, for in Franceschi he has the most dangerous runner on the Coast. Pete is a constant threat, he runs when he wants, passes when he can and punts when he feels like it. That's why his name is "Daffy." He loves to run with a football. He had little chance against Stanford but as soon as Pete entered the game he had the fans on edge. Santa Clara remembers Pete only too well last year when he ran back punts for 45, 35 and 50 yards at a crack.

With all his wildman antics Malley will be more than satisfied if Pete gets to his destination once during the game.

The other probable starters in the backfield will be Walt Pudoff at quarterback and Sammy Johnstone at right half.

Coach Al Tassi has only listed Bill Telesmanic, Dan Fisk and Bob Keith as sure starters for the Don line. Telesmanic is another bad medicine boy to the Gaels. In 1938 he caught two touchdown passes, but one was called back. Last year he recovered a fumble of the St Mary's kickoff on the Gael 22-yard line and USF scored on a pass from Fisk to Mosconi two plays later.

Although we are not predicting a victory for the Dons, we must say that the line was improved. Tassi has had that line drilling for so long and so hard that its just a second nature to wish them to dig in and push.

Weakest spot in the line is the guards and judging from the way California poured through the Gael line last week this position is a tossup.

However a new face, Dick Eisenlauer, 190-pound veteran of the 1938 Dons, has returned to school and if his injured knee holds up he will be a welcome addition. The other guard will be Trude Spearman, 185-pound senior with Joe VanderLinden and Joe Clerou in reserve. Eisenlauer was first string on the '38 Dons but his knee injury kept him out of football for two years.

Definitely set at one tackle is "Sixty Minute" Bob Keith, a defense bulwark and line captain against Stanford. He'll have plenty of help from Doc Haley, Bebe Mohr and sophomore Butch Burtner, all over 220 pounds.

Dan Fisk is back at the pivot spot spelling "Tiger" Smith, who started the Stanford tilt.

The Dons should have some defense for the Gael "flankers." We can thank Mr. Clark Shaughnessy for this, he showed us plenty that we may be able to use against the Strader strategy.

Either Finch, Franceschi or Joe Garcia, an end, will do the kicking. Garcia is a long booter but very green, Franceschi is rather eratic with the kicking chores.

The Don rooters will miss "old Slip" this year but welcome the new mentor, Red Strader. How cordial this welcome will be we won't know until Sunday but we think "Red" will understand. If its some of Madigan's sideline antics we want, Eddie Erdelatz will undoubtedly perform in old fashion.

So lookout Gaels—we're not too optimistic but we've improved.

Gael-Don Grid History

Saint Mary's College and the University of San Francisco began their exciting football rivalry in 1926. At that time, the Dons were nicknamed "The Gray Fog" and the institution was known as Saint Ignatius College.

In the last fourteen games Saint Mary's has won twelve, tied one and lost one.

Up until one fateful day in 1936 the Gaels had been untied and unbeaten by the Dons. That year the popular George "Duke" Malley took over the reins at the Hilltop institution and led a fighting USF eleven to a deadlock with the Moragans and a moral victory. Previously Saint Mary's had scored a total of 150 points in ten games to the Dons' 16.

Last year the USF boys turned the trick which had been threatening for thirteen years—They beat the Gaels 7 to 0.

Complete history of the rivalry follows:

1926—Saint Mary's 38, USF 0.
1927—Saint Mary's 23, USF 0.
1928—Saint Mary's 13, USF 0.
1929—Saint Mary's 6, USF 0.
1930—Saint Mary's 13, USF 0.
1931—Saint Mary's 14, USF 6.
1932—Saint Mary's 16, USF 7.
1933—Saint Mary's 7, USF 0.
1934—Saint Mary's 7, USF 3.
1935—Saint Mary's 13, USF 0.
1936—Saint Mary's 0, USF 0.
1937—Saint Mary's 3, USF 0.
1938—Saint Mary's 13, USF 7.
1939—Saint Mary's 0, USF 7.

It's 'Captain McGrath' For Don Tilt

Leading the Galloping Gaels against the University of San Francisco will be fighting Joe McGrath, senior player from San Francisco and rounding out his career on the gridiron for the Gaels. McGrath is probably the smallest guard on the Coast, but as he proved last week against the Bears he can trade punches with the biggest of them.

In his first two years of competition McGrath did not see much action but his determination and fight has brought him along to a starting berth and to being nominated captain and leader of the Gaels in next Sunday's forthcoming attempt to conquer the University of San Francisco.

Commenting on his choice, Coach Norm Strader added, "Joe is smaller than the average guard but he has a fighting heart bigger than other football players." He gave a great performance against California and he should give a great exhibition of leadership, seeing as how he's right on his home grounds."

Conlan Addresses Basketball Signup

Louis "Dutch" Conlan, newly appointed Saint Mary's basketball coach, made his first appearance of the year on the campus in that capacity Wednesday when he addressed a signup meeting of all potential varsity and frosh players.

Conlan stressed his insistence on physical condition. He will employ the "fast break" offense, featured on Harlan Dykes' teams and will utilize the man-to-man defense this year.

Conlan agreed to take over the job of head basketball coach with the resignation of Dykes because of illness.

About 35 frosh and varsity prospects turned out for the signup Wednesday. Coming back to the varsity will be Jack Tobin, Frank "Ock" Miller, Jim Keating, Ed Loomis, Frank Boyle, "Shove" Noonan, Carl Kaiser, Cliff Hoff, Jim Whitty, George Woodhouse and Charlie Parker.

First practice will be held Monday night in the gymnasium at 7:30.

Coach Commends Goal Line Stands

Concerning last week's defeat Strader remarked, "The Bears made a lot of yardage through us, but it was encouraging to see the Gaels stiffen and stop California twice on the one-yard line. In regard to the score it shows that our boys were fighting to win. They never gave up, even on the one yard line with 30 seconds to go. There was no question about it. The Bears were a rejuvenated outfit and after the Michigan game they had to come back or else.

The times we had the ball our boys moved it rapidly and easily. The team showed enough spurts of offense and brilliant defense to make me believe that we will do all right the rest of the schedule.

"We are all set for USF and this looms as one of our toughest. USF has a much heavier and more experienced team. They are all keyed up for us. We are their biggest game and naturally they will be out there playing their best game of the season. They always point for us and Sunday will see a great battle."

Strader Makes Changes In Gael Lineup

Litchfield Moved To Tackle; Curry, Coll Get Starting Berths

is the experience of the Dons as compared to the greenness of the Strader-men.

Only two men were lost from the squad which toppled the Gaels for the first time in 13 seasons last year. Coupled with that Molley has up from the Frosh a bumper crop of prospects.

This experience may toll the bell of doom for Saint Mary's, as was the case last week, as many times the inexperienced men would dash all over the field only to tackle a man who didn't have the pigskin.

Cliff Fisk, Marv Mosconi and the glue-fingered Bill Telesmanic are the spearheads of the Don attack. And in Pete Franceschi, Malley has perhaps the greatest broken field runner on the Coast, but Franceschi will not start, but will be put in the game when the moment seems opportune.

To pave the way for the ball carriers is a big, rangy, rugged veteran line, averaging a mere 200 pounds per man, with the ability to knock down any obstacles in the way.

DRASTIC CHANGES

Drastic changes will be seen in the Gael starting lineup. Four changes bring the total of five sophs included on the first string. For their outstanding work on the flanks, Curry and Coll have been assigned the end positions. These two sophs will be backed by two soph tackles, Litchfield having been moved up from end, and Tonsing. Litchfield was slightly banged up in practice and if he does not see action Horvat, yet another soph, will take his place. McGrath will be game captain and he replaces Martinelli. He will be the only senior in the line.

Against Gonzaga "Red" kept his plays under wraps for the Bears, and since he didn't get a chance to use them against the Berkeleyans the works will be shot against the Dons. Both teams realize the success of the season hinges on this contest, so Malley will also let everything out and the tradition, color and glamour always make the boys play inspired ball. This all sums up to the fact that one of the greatest duels of the year will probably be staged.

To Mary

"To Mary, of whom was born Jesus."

These words so exquisitely inscribed upon our chapel's wall constantly remind us, the students of Saint Mary's College that we are the sons of Mary; that we are dedicating each and every day of our collegiate life to her, our Mother; that in her honor we gain victory upon the gridiron, success in our scholastic endeavors and a lively faith and devoted love of God and His Church through her intercession with her Divine Son.

October honors the Blessed Virgin Mary as Queen of the Rosary. It is the only month of the year dedicated to a practice of Christian devotion. A specific feast in honor of the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin is celebrated on October 7. Originally it was a feast in honor of Our Lady of Victory, for thus it was ordered in 1571 by Pope St. Pius V for the protection of God over His Church and in particular for the delivery of Christianity from the threat of the infidel Turks.

In each of our individual lives we also find that we cannot repel the invasion of temptation, sin and laxity of our Christian faith. We too need the protection of God to deliver us from our enemies. We too can experience victory if we will only place our trust in the Mother of God through the medium of her Rosary.

A devotion as popular as the Rosary must possess a depth of meaning appealing to the most learned and yet have a simplicity of form attracting the most unlettered. This simplicity is found in the repetition of the Our Father and the Hail Mary. The mysteries of the life of Our Lord and His Mother are recalled by the Rosary and are a source of profound meditation for every faithful Catholic.

The beads themselves are an external manifestation of our beliefs. A Catholic youth should at all times carry his beads with him as a mark of devotion to his Mother. The consolation and satisfaction which they offer are unbounded. Mary is ever attentive to our supplications. She desires that we should petition her graces, implore her patronage, carry her banner of purity and sanctity.

Each of Saint Mary's must follow her direction—she is our Mother. We must love her unceasingly—she is our Queen. We must offer her our minds, our hearts and our bodies—she is our protection.

We can do this by attending the daily recitation of the Rosary each night in the Chapel of De La Salle Hall, and by continually bearing in mind that we of Saint Mary's are dedicated to her and she to us.

More of It

Though not wishing to break our backs to praise other rival institutions, we must nevertheless give due congratulations to the University of California student body for the new, and thoroughly appreciated spirit of their rooters at last week's Gael-Bear football game.

Truly jubilant over defeating the Gaels on the field, the Californians, several thousand strong, crossed en masse to the Gael side of the stadium to join with the Moraga students in songs and yells. And we don't believe they came over to gloat, for the Gael rooters looked out upon friendly faces.

If this is indicative of a new, more friendly feeling between the two rival institutions, we are glad. At any rate, the spirit shown at the game was something which has been noticeably lacking in previous years.

Best of Luck

Among other noteworthy achievements, the collegiate year of 1940-41 will be remembered as a period of successful "Catholic Action," a period in which the six Catholic colleges of the Bay area cast aside all rivalries to cooperate enthusiastically in academic and cultural activities to the benefit of all concerned.

This is the indication given as the result of the first meeting of the Catholic Intercollegiate association during the week in which the representatives from the neighboring institutions formed a stable organization and proposed a number of outstanding activities which will raise the stock of the colleges in the eyes of the public.

The proposed joint-radio forum has immense possibilities. It will show the public that the Catholic colleges are doing something worthwhile; it will provide an outlet for thoughts on vital college problems. Other functions planned are no less important, the literary magazine especially, with talent from six campuses to choose from, such a publication can be the most outstanding in the collegiate world.

So it is that we heartily endorse the activities of the Intercollegiate association, and express our congratulations to the leaders of Saint Marys, Santa Clara, San Francisco, Holy Names, Dominican, and San Francisco College for Women that they have started the proverbial ball rolling so successfully.

MoragaMusings

Last week end was quite a time, beginning with the rally and dance Thursday. The dance of Thursday evening revealed that in years to come, some of our Frosh are going to be all there when it comes to the terpsichorean art. Notable among the lads of the class of '44 were Paul Goodwin and one Theodore Diamantopopulos—both of whom were really cutting the rug!

It seems that our head yell king, Les Dole, is doing O.K. He has two little cuties—Shirley S. and Connie R., both of whom go to a Catholic high school in Berkeley. Also, after the debacle in Strawberry canyon last Saturday, Les was surrounded by a bevy of not less than six and not more than twelve sweet young things.

Kenny Butler who came back from the baseball wars recently keeps a portrait in his room that he claims is really one of Maryland's finest. And it's plenty fine.

The All Knowing One isn't sure just yet but just off last Saturday evening's performance he is inclined to think that the new white hope will come from Moraga valley. And in the same vein, what did Al Ward say to McPartland? And then what did McPartland and J. Lankas say to Ward? And was it really Ex-Sports Editor McKeever of the Collegian that said hello to big Joe Aguirre.

Did any one notice Ed Gunz talking a blue streak to a nifty little number off in a corner at the Whitcomb? It looked serious—so our man Thursday reports.

An orchid to Jack Kelly and his orchestra. They were about the only thing that was good about the dance last Saturday.

Timothy Dempsey managed to mislay twelve bucks some time between the beginning and the end of last Saturday evening—his own dough.

Most of the varsity showed up at the brawl at the Whitcomb, and all of them, including freshman manager Hohl did their best to make a good impression on the weaker sex.

Wonder when Rip Maloney is going to be called into the present European conflict as a peacemaker? On a recent occasion, he did himself proud. There's nothing like Rip's hulking frame to halt incipient hostilities. Maybe he ought to be a referee in the squared circle.

And is it true that there is a young lady down at Holy Names who would like to meet Paul Reginato? Her initials are N. C. and she's in the Junior class; better look into it Paul.

Famous last words (from History 124) "I've forgotten, but you fellows had better brush up on Longfellow's Evangeline."—Brother Matthew.

Latest flash on the derby is that Bill Scanlan is looming as a definite dark horse. Keep punching, there's plenty of time.

Who is looking for a picture of his fiance in the Sacramento Bee? Nobody else but Al Rosa!

Quote of the week: "Now, don't blow out the lights, Sanguinetti."—Brother Virgil.

Veddy Veddy Humorous Letter Printed

By THOMAS HEIDENREICH

HE CAN READ—We love to read letters. It is one of our favorite indoor sports. Sometimes little gems crop up in letter-columns. We are taking it upon ourself to print one such letter which particularly struck our fancy. It comes from the Safety Valve of the San Francisco Chronicle:

Editor The Chronicle—Sir: I am a woman Democrat and I think the New Deal is wonderful even if some of my friends say it is raw and others claim it is rotten. But many politicians just have to be that way, I think. Anyway, they have some smart men. Take Mr. Ickes; who else ever thought of buying 84 dollars worth of stamps and putting a little glue on them so they would be worth $180,000. And he kept the stamps, too, after he shooed off the investigation.

I just love to hear Mrs. Roosevelt on the radio even if I do not think so much of her soap. She surely shows how a voice can be helped by training. And Mr. Roosevelt, isn't he too darling when he says "My friends and fellow citizens?" It makes me all quivery inside.

Some folks seem to blame him for giving his son Elliott a Captain's job at a desk with $300 a month pay. I think it is very small minded; does he want the poor boy to get hurt or all scarred up in a battle like my Uncle Jim was in the World War?

I listen to Mr. Wallace, too, and my friends say he leaves out a lot of the real big things Mr. Roosevelt has done. I never heard him tell about a big ship canal in Florida that cost millions, and they told about a big thing up in Maine called Passamaquoddy that people would be glad to hear about. Also I hope he tells about some model towns with wonderful houses so the poor people could get more abundant life.

Sometimes I think it would be a good thing to let Mr. Willkie be President and do all the work so Mr. Roosevelt could spend more time talking to us over the radio.

Signed: Miss Floretta M'Gonagle

Somehow the lady seems to convey not too delicately that she doesn't care for the Roosevelt regime. We try to keep our personal ideas on national politics out of the column, but we really couldn't resist printing this letter. When people say something better than you could yourself, it's no crime to quote them.

SLAPS BENITO—The Joe Miller of Europe is trying to tickle the American funny-bone again. Good old "Il Popolo d'Italia" has just come out with another interesting story. This time, instead of calling us a gang of illiterates and ignoramuses, they start promising us things. We usually tend to be cautious when anyone starts trying to give us something: it means they want something, too. That happens to be the case here.

If we stay out of the European mess, we will be one of the "natural heirs" of the British Empire and will receive Canada and other British possessions in this hemisphere. You've got to admit that they are being mighty generous with us. We are going to fall heir to Britain, impliedly with Axis permission.

They seem to overlook the obvious. If the British lose, we have those possessions anyway. We would just naturally step in and take them over, and we imagine that it would be at the invitation of the people themselves. Can't you just picture the Canadians letting the Axis rowdies give them away to somebody?

If it ever came to that, they would either vote to join the United States or else set up their own government closely allied with ours. From the way the Axis members talk, they don't seem to have ever heard the term, "Yankee horse-trader." Or do they actually think they can sell us our own horse?

TELL THE MARINES—As long as we are discussing the humorous side of the War, we might as well comment on another little news story that came out recently. It seems a letter was received by an English family from a member who was captive in Germany. He painted a stirring account of the beauties of life there, and ended up by asking them to tell all his friends in the army and navy, and especially to tell it to the Marines.

Another yarn of the same general type ends up with the line, "And be sure to tell it to Cousin Sweeney." Apparently the Germans aren't well-up on various Anglo-Saxon colloquialisms, if these tales are true. If it is as easy as that to slip things over on the censors, imagine what an American could do with the wonderful collection of slang at his command. Or have the Germans been seeing American gangster movies?

Comment on Campus News . . by Lionel Holmes

The Good Old Days Way Back When

The actor, sure and inspired, stood in mid-stage before an enthralled capacity audience. Dim footlights illuminated the magnificent scenery as the actor rendered his highly dramatic lines with the perfection of an Edwin Booth. The atmosphere was faultless—but for one thing: the electrician was asleep at the switch when he should have been playing his brilliant spot light on the confident young thespian.

But the young actor was unperturbed. Continuing with his dramatic soliloquy, he cried out in ringing tones: "The spot, the spot! My God, the spot!" The electrician awoke, and the play went on.

Charles Moule, now an Oakland doctor, and at the time a student at the Old Brickpile, was the actor. The year was 1910 and the occasion was a dramatic performance by the Saint Mary's college thespians, according to Brother Leo, our informant.

This sidelight was but one of the several interesting incidents brought from the depths of Brother Leo's memories at the request of this writer to aid our cause as self-styled standard bearer for a revival of campus dramatics.

We learned some interesting things from Brother Leo about Saint Mary's dramatics in the days when the stage-art was the leading activity of the campus, when outstanding Bay area critics lauded the work of Saint Mary's actors as reaching near-professional heights. What Brother Leo didn't tell us we culled from the Collegian's "morgue" of clippings, which date back to the first year in the Moraga valley.

The clippings gave us the background, revealing that the years 1931 and '32 witnessed the most dramatic activity at the present college site. An enterprising and optimistic reporter wrote regarding preparations for Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors": "There has been no date set for the production, no place of production has been decided upon, no cast has as yet been released, no rehearsals have been held, no place for rehearsals has been obtained, but otherwise plans are rapidly taking shape." In 1932 the college went "highbrow" and cooperated with College of the Holy Names, Oakland in the production of the opera, "Rosamunde" which was given on both sides of the bay successfully. The clippings recorded the formation of a Drama-Music Guild in 1931, and the presentation of numerous one-act skits at rallies. They told of the enthusiasm of one John Nesbitt, whom radio listeners today associate with "The Passing Parade," a program of highlights on the news.

It was Brother Leo who supplied us with the color of campus dramatics, telling us how that same John Nesbitt was so enthusiastic about the art that he would have day-students rehearsing parts for plays as the Sacramento Northern trolley wound its way through the hills from Oakland to Moraga.

He went back further than the era of Nesbitt, and from the comfort of a luxurious leather arm-chair in the genial lecturer's study, we heard more interesting and humorous tales. One was told on the faculty.

A production of "Dante the Wing-bearer" given in San Francisco featured Leo Cunningham, now a prominent lawyer, in the principle role. After the curtain rang down on the high successful performance, one of the audience, a woman, expressed to Brother Leo that she was impressed with the serious mien of the student actors.

"Just then the curtain rose,' the Brother smiled, "to reveal the 'serious' actors playing leap-frog on the stage, with Cunningham showing unusual agility as he vaulted over Jim Hagerty's back." It would be a redundancy to say that the lady was shocked.

In the same play, the Brother informed the writer, a donkey had been borrowed from Golden Gate park to add to the atmosphere of the first scene. A minute or so before the animal was to be led across the stage, it gave forth with three loud, most unmusical brays. Peeved at this interruption, Cunningham pulled the animal away from the wings and gave the poor beast three sharp kicks in the belly. "Three embarrassing hicoughs was the result, but the ass was silenced."

"And then," he continued, "there was a production of Richard III in which Professor Hagerty also had a prominent role. Rudy Caffaro who played the Earl of Richmond was going through the solemn 'prayer' scene. He finished, and it came time to drop the curtain, but the tender had gone to sleep, apparently. 'Wake up, you fool—let down the curtain,' the Earl shouted to the delight of the audience and the dismay of the director."

That was all. If Brother Leo had had more time to give us we undoubtedly could have obtained enough interesting and humorous incidents to fill this entire page. But perhaps these will be enough to inspire the present crop of budding dramatists to unexcelled heights this term.

Rare College Humor Given Here Today

By BILL FENERAN '43

CHECK HATS—Quaintest stunt of the week comes from Ohio State University, through the medium of the Cal Aggies. It seems that one day the professor of a certain class arrived fifteen minutes late. Quite naturally, the classroom was empty, the students had all left. At the next meeting of the class, the prof severely reprimanded them for failing to remain in their seats, and pointed out that he had left his hat on the desk as a sign of his presence. The next day, the professor again chanced to be late, and upon arriving at the classroom, he found it absolutely deserted—but, on each desk was a hat! (So help us, it's the truth).

CHOO CHOO—Poo Poo Purdue, the Indiana Boilermakers institute, has a mascot to rank with the Army mule, or the Navy goat. The brand new mascot is a full-sized locomotive, the same kind used by railroad companies. The engine was built from funds contributed to the cause by students, alumni and friends of the university. The superstructure of the thing was put together by an alumnus, an executive of the Baldwin-Wallace Locomotive Works, and the chassis and other incidentals were thrown in by local gear and tool companies. All in the spirit of comradeship. Now the worry is whether the mascot will travel with the Boilermakers, or the Boilermakers will travel on the mascot.

CUTE POEM—In our present state of weakness, like a drowning man, we'll clutch at anything. The following is an excerpt from the Piedmont high school paper, which also has a football team known as the point-a-minute boys, 50 points their first game, 52 their second.

Mary had a little lamb
With her it used to frolic
It licked her cheeks in play one day,
And died of painters colic.

THE CRASH—Another western football conference is in the process of breaking high, wide and handsome. With the withdrawal from the Far Western conference of the Fresno State Bulldogs, only COP, Humboldt, Cal Aggies, and Chico State are left, the U. of Nevada having resigned last spring. Alonzo Stagg's COP outfit is reported ready to follow Fresno into what appears to be a better league—the California Collegiate Athletic Association. Already members of the CCAA are Fresno, San Jose State, Santa Barbara, and San Diego, and the addition of the Pacific eleven would bolster it no end. The situation will stand as is until the end of the 1940 grid season, but then, watch things pop. Incidentally, isnt it about time for USC to get sore and tell the PCC just where to go, thereby kicking that delapidated contract out the window?

NICKEL BOY—Many are the ways of ambitious youth in acquiring a college education, but the solution offered by young Sam Coggins is one of the best yet. In brief, it's the cat's pajamas. Sam had ambitions of attending Mississippi state, and for the fulfillment of that ambition he was willing to work at anything. So, Sam went out, went into business for himself, selling peanuts, and earned every nickle of the required $120 tuition money. And to top it off, Sam'l paid his tuition in just that amount, $120, all 2400 nickles. What a burn that cashier had!

As the Southerner said when leaving his yacht, "Goodnight yawl . . ." (Loyola of Chi.)

OUCH, MY TOE—One of the freak pre-season accidents was the one that happened to Don MacPherson, UCLA end and captain of the team. While working this summer at an oil refinery, his foot was broken by a heavy tank dropped on it. The screwy part of the whole set-up, and what makes it a freak accident, is the fact that the guy who dropped the tank on MacPherson's tootsie was Al Kreuger, rival end from the University of Southern California. Sabotage!

Girls who used to go to swim,
Once dressed like Mother Hubbard.
Now they have a different whim,
And dress more like her cupboard.
(Thanks Highlands).

INTELLIGENT?—Stanford University, in their publication—the Stanford Daily, runs a column Campus Opinion. Last week was a comment, written in a very gentlemanly manner, by Colin McClintock, Indian football star. He summarizes his complaint very simply—he wants no more mud-slinging, as had appeared in their paper, at USC. For, says he, although "we may feel superior intellectually to USC, and their athletes, please let's not stoop to the point of tearing them down in our daily." Mighty nice sentiment, Mr. McClintock, mighty nice, but what's this superior intellect stuff? That's blasphemous, or something; you'll get in trouble thataway. Why don't you and El Trojan go out in the back yard and settle the difficulty with a spelling bee. At any rate, let's you and him fight!
